In June, industry resulted in positive numbers, most of its sectors were growing

The double-digit growth of the decisive manufacture of transport equipment was also supported for the second month by the energy sector, which overcame the base effect of a significant quarter-on-quarter decline that persisted throughout 2022. Among the large sectors, growth was dampened only by the ongoing decline in manufacture of rubber products.

Industrial production¹⁾ of the SR increased by 3.6% year-on-year in June. After two months of year-on-year decline, Slovak industry thus increased its performance, it was the second month of growth since the beginning of the year. In total, out of 15 monitored sectors of Slovak industry (special industrial groupings)²⁾, 8 had a higher performance than a year ago, including most of the important sectors.
