Production of construction companies continued to increase, construction of building also progressed again

Production of construction companies continued to grow year-on-year in October as well, new construction including reconstruction and modernization thrived. In terms of production specification, civil engineering works maintained a double-digit growth rate, and the dominant construction of buildings was again in positive figures.

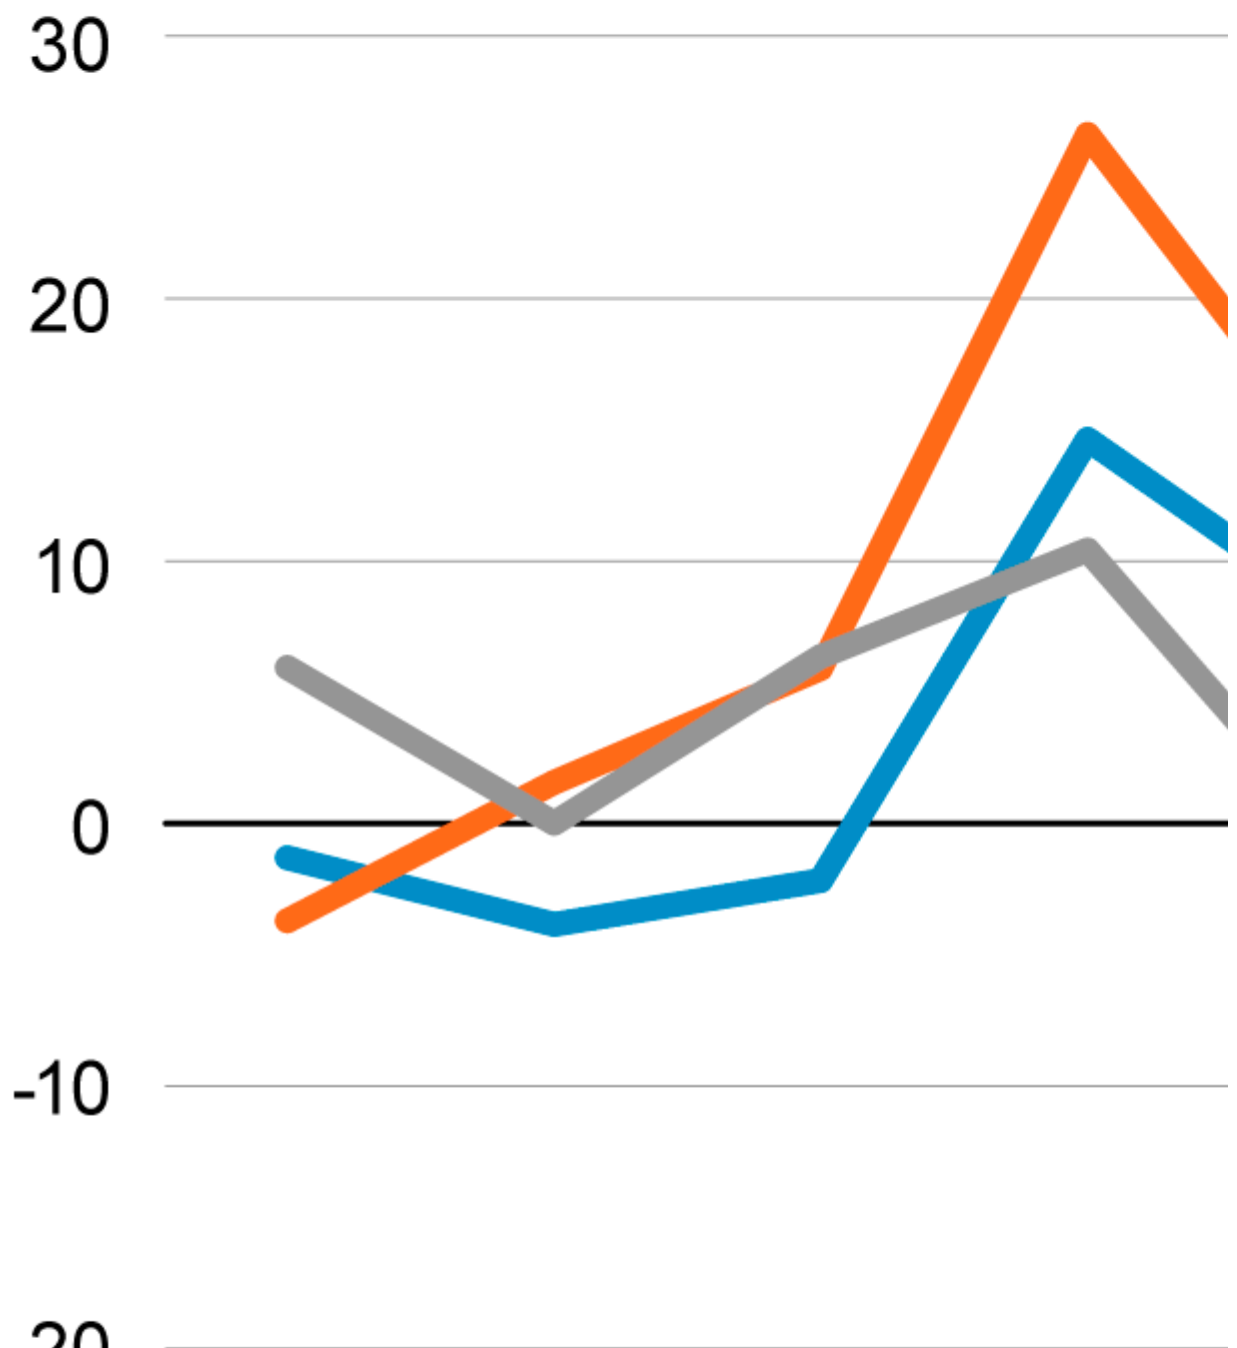

Construction production¹⁾ reached the level of EUR 713 million in October 2023 and increased by 5% year-on-year²⁾. After taking seasonal effects into account, it was lower by 2.1% compared to September 2023.

Domestic construction companies realized almost 91% of the total production of the sector. Domestic construction production continued to grow year-on-year for the sixth consecutive month. Its current increase reached 7% and was the third highest this year. The positive result was mainly supported by more dynamic significant new construction³⁾ by more than 9%.
