Summary of activities on the topic European Statistics Day 2023

On the initiative of the European Statistical Advisory Committee, October 20 is dedicated to statistics. The aim of the European Statistics Day (hereafter ESD) is to raise awareness of the importance and value of official statistics produced by European or national statistical authorities. At the same time, it is an opportunity to remind the importance of quality statistical products useful for society.

On this occasion, the Statistical Office has prepared a series of dissemination and communication outputs, which it gradually publishes during the month of October.

ESD 2023: Regional cities in 2022

Prices for buying an apartment in 2022 grew dynamically in all regional cities, with the exception of city Žilina, in four regional cities the price increase was by more than a fifth. At the same time, regional cities are aging faster than the Slovak average, the proportion of seniors aged 65 and over in all regional cities approaches the 20%.
