Slovak industry slowed down again in April, not even the higher manufacture of transport equipment could positively affect the result

In the fourth month, most sectors of industrial production struggled with significant year-on-year declines, which generally could not be covered even by the growth of the crucial manufacture of transport equipment as well as manufacture of metals. The key sector of the economy had its second-lowest April performance since 2016, right after the 2020 Covid-19 shutdown.
