Freight transport performance achieved again a year-on-year growth after a year

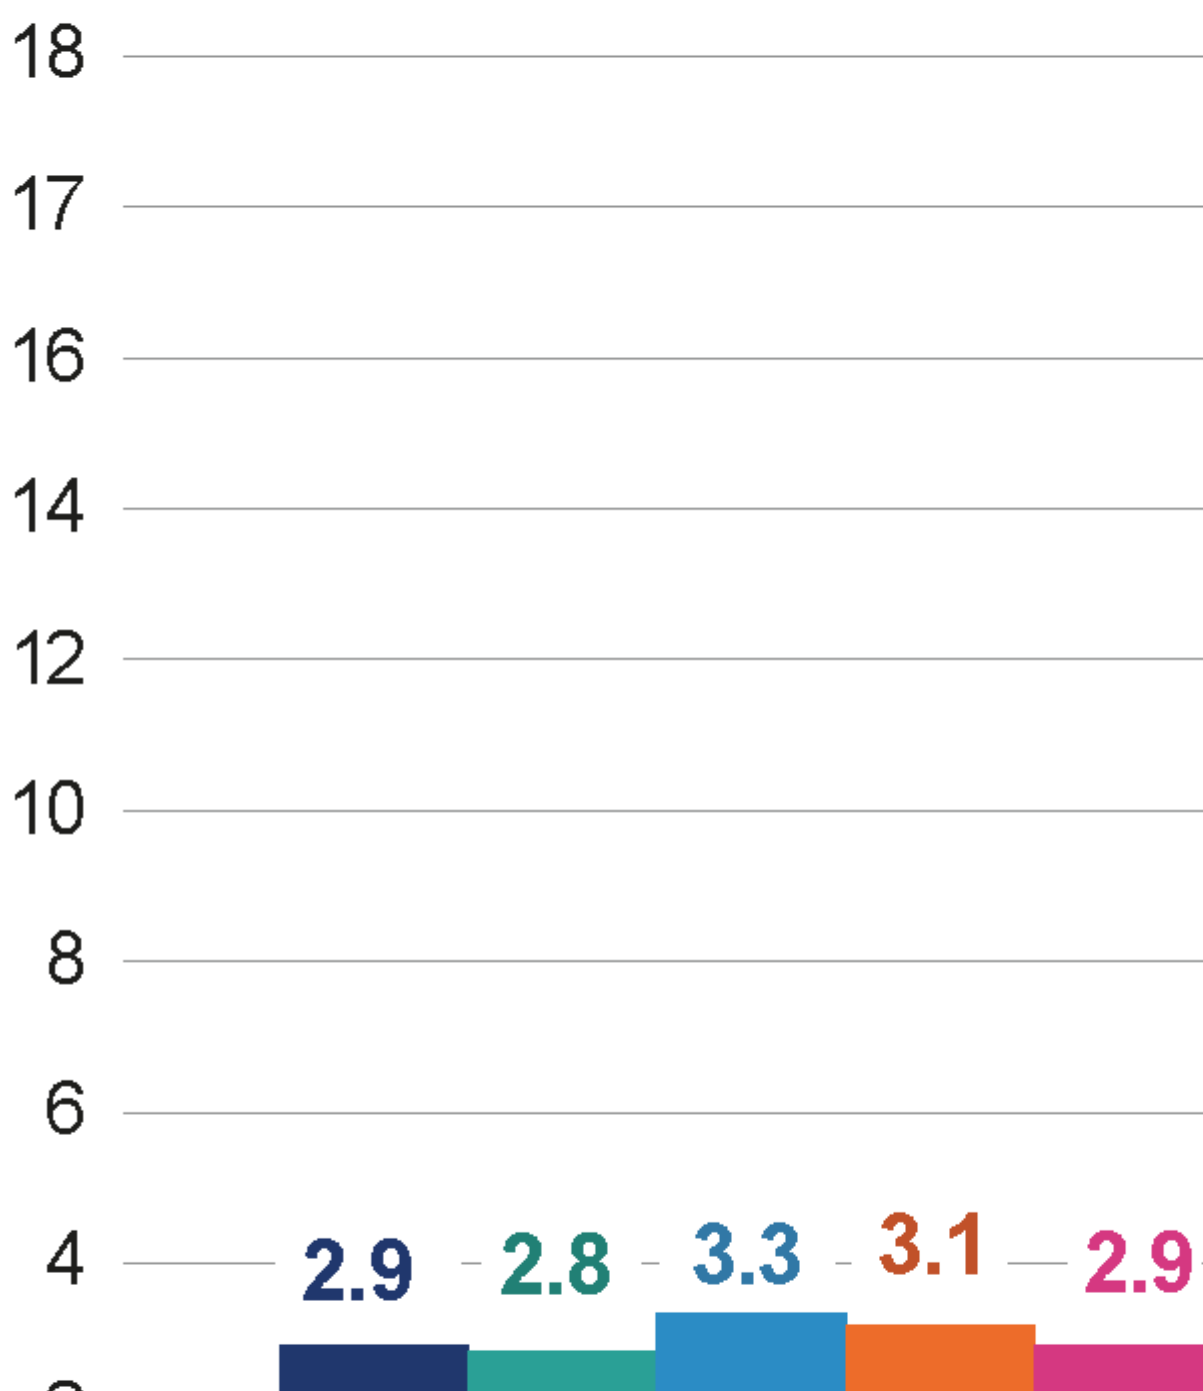

Freight transport showed a year-on-year increase in volumes of transported goods mainly due to the increased volumes in road transport by more than 10%. On the contrary, railway and other transport did not reach last year's values. The number of passengers in passenger transport rose year-on-year at a double-digit rate, and the transport distances also exceeded the last year's values.

The total value of the volume of freight transport in July 2023 reached 19.1 million tons of goods, representing a year-on-year increase by 3.4%. The year-on-year increase in transport volumes occurred for the first time since July 2022. Road transport, the strongest component, had the most significant impact on the overall increase, which increased its volume again by 10.3% after half a year of declines. For the fourth consecutive month, rail transport recorded a decrease in the volume of transport, by 5.5%. 2.3 million tons of goods were transported by other transport, however, it did not reach the last year's values.
