Prices of both industrial producers and farmers continued to decrease year-on-year at a double-digit rate

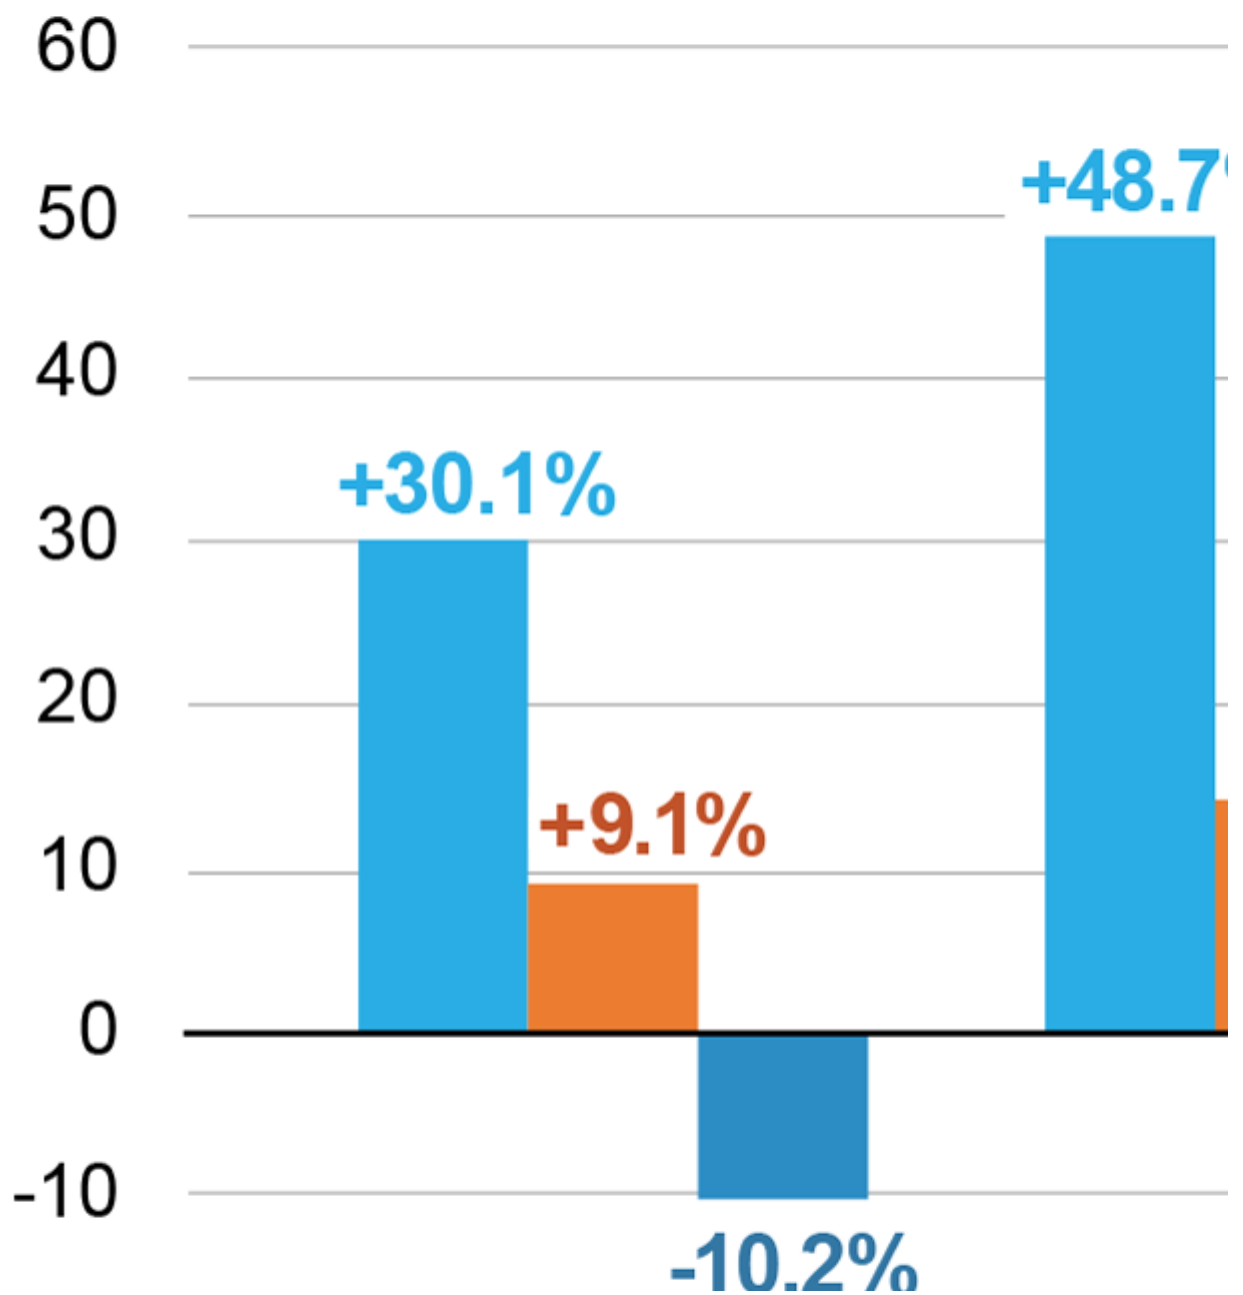

A decline in industrial producer prices for the domestic market continued for the fourth consecutive month, in April 2024 prices decreased year-on-year by more than 13%. The overall result was influenced by lower prices of energy by a third and lower prices in manufacture of transport equipment that persisted the last three months. The double-digit rate of decline in prices of agricultural products has been maintained since July 2023.

Industrial producer prices for the domestic market decreased year-on-year by 13.4% in April 2024. This was mainly affected by the drop in energy prices by up to 28.9%. Lower prices in manufacturing were supported by manufacture of transport equipment by 0.5%, manufacture of metals by 5.3%, manufacture of food, beverages and tobacco by 3.3%, and also manufacture of rubber and plastic products by 1.1%. Price increase continued in water supply by 9.4%. In a month-on-month comparison, prices declined by 0.5%. In total, for the four months of 2024, industrial producer prices for the domestic market dropped by 12%.
