

Employment and average monthly wage in selected sectors of economy in September 2023

Posledná aktualizácia: 10.08.2024 | Počet zobrazení: null

Vydavateľ: null

Tématická oblasť: null

Okruh: null

Dátum publikovania: 10.11.2023

Wages increased in most manufacturing sectors in September, but the employment decreased

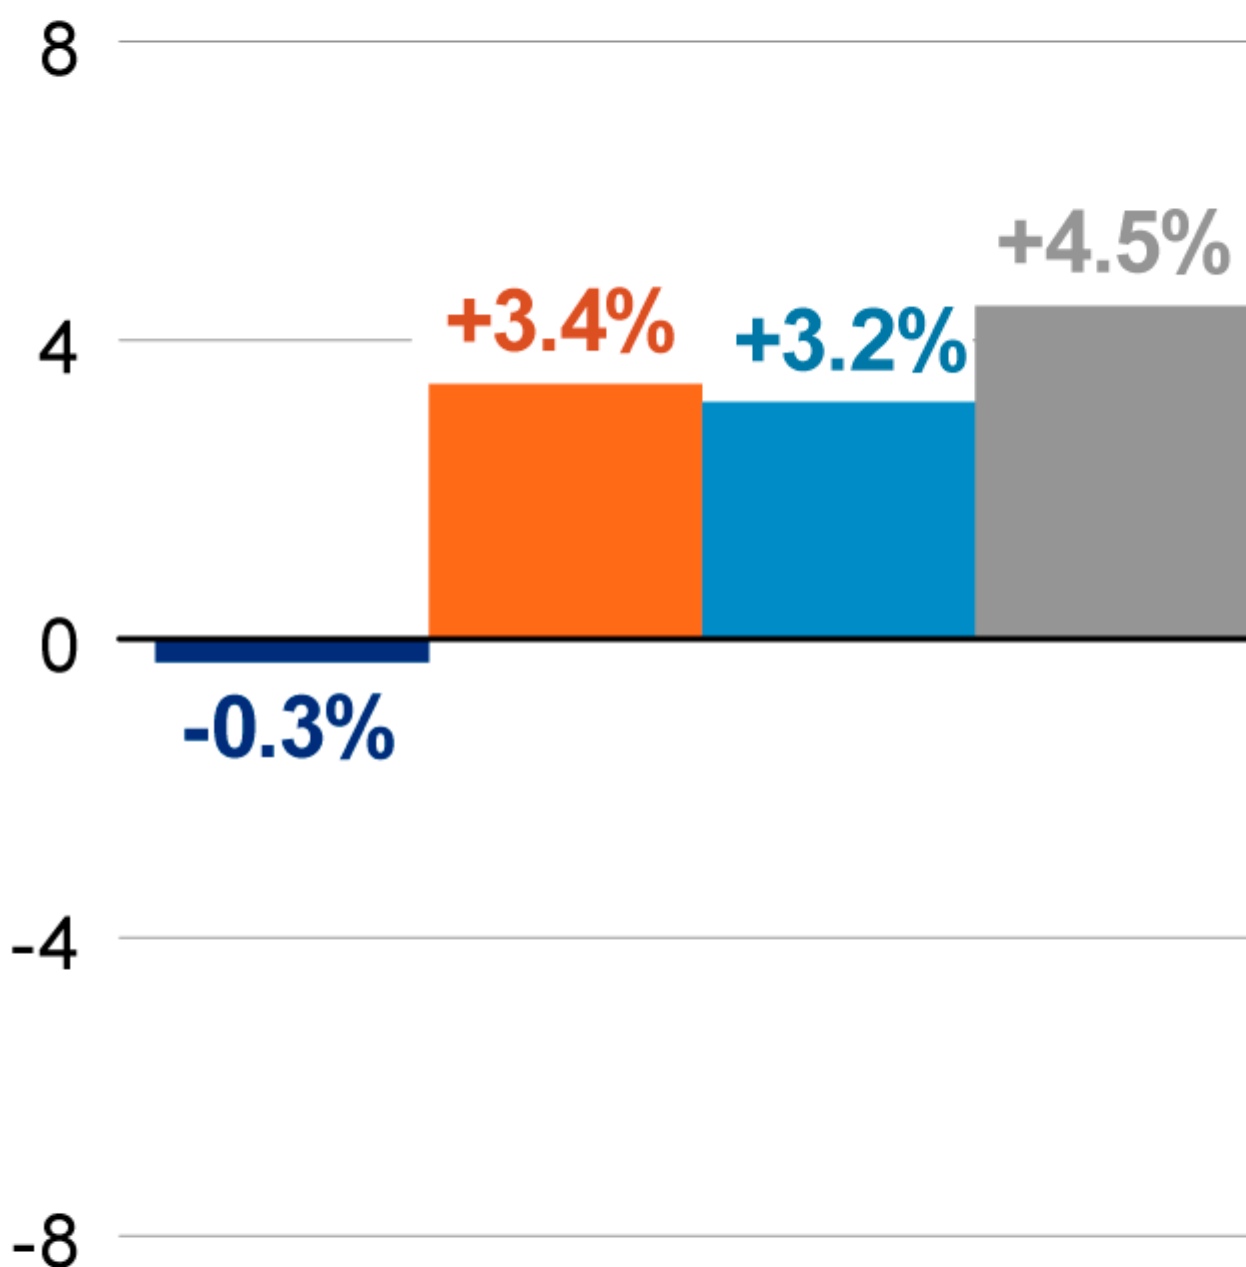

Even in September 2023, an increase in real wages was kept in 7 out of 10 monitored sectors. Wages of employees in retail trade increased the most year-on-year. A decline in employment continued in most sectors, most significantly in wholesale.

In September 2023, the average nominal monthly wage¹⁾ grew year-on-year in all 10 monthly monitored sectors. Wages in retail trade increased the most by 16.2% to EUR 1,135. Wages of employees also increased at a double-digit rate in food and beverage service activities by 13.1% to EUR 710 and in selected market services by 11.9% to EUR 1,390. A rise in wages in other selected sectors ranged from 6.7% in information and communication, where the average wage amounted to EUR 2,345, to 9.1% in wholesale with an average wage in the amount of EUR 1,409 in September.

In September, wages in most monitored sectors were not affected by inflation, i.e. they increased year-on-year in real terms. The most significant increase was in retail trade by 7.4%, the level of growth was exceeded by 3% in the food and beverage service activities and in selected market services. In transport sector, they remained at the level of September 2022. Lower wages of employees in real terms were recorded in information and communication by 1.4%, as well as in industry, where real wages decreased by 0.7% year-on-year.

Average real monthly (year-on-year change, %)

9.2021

■ Industry ■ S

* sectors with the highest share on emp