

Energy

14.01.2014 |

Energy statistics are oriented towards relevant and comparable statistical information on the production, flow, and consumption of energies. This information is needed for the creation and monitoring of energy policy and for satisfaction of user's needs on national and international levels..