In August, construction production increased again the pace of growth, a significant progress was achieved mainly by engineering construction

Construction production in August rose year-on-year to the highest level this year. It was supported by a double-digit growth in new construction and a dynamic, more than a third, increase in works on engineering infrastructure.

In August 2023, the volume of construction production¹⁾ exceeded the level of EUR 660 million and increased by 4% year-on-year²⁾. After seasonal adjustment, month-on-month (compared to July 2023), the performance of construction enterprises was lower by 0.3%.

The significant domestic construction output rose for the fourth consecutive month, increasing by 5.4% year-on-year in August 2023. The most significant impact on its growth was the increase in new construction, including renewals and modernisations³⁾ by 10.8%. The relatively less significant- repair and maintenance were lower by 7.5% year-on-year.
